CHRISTIAN WERNER

Christian Werner is one of the most successful furniture designers of recent years and his high-profile work includes a range of storage furniture for Ligne Roset and sofas for Rolf Benz. In addition to furniture design, the Berlin-born designer recently ventured into the world of interior design, working on shops, restaurants and trade fair stands. Numerous awards confirm his position as one of Germany's leading interior designers. However, the designer is always ready to turn his hand to something new: he recently surprised the international fashion world by designing an extraordinary platform shoe. He is now the first outstanding furniture designer to collaborate with bathroom manufacturer a company that, in the last 20 years, has made a name for itself in the world of international architecture and design with a specific design strategy.

Duravit, 1897-2009

ANDREAS STRUPPLER

Andreas Struppler and his team are fascinated by intelligent utility, technical developments and new materials. Born in Munich in 1964, he worked in various workshops before studying architecture and design at the University of Kassel. He gained valuable experience in design studios in Milan, Munich and Berlin before opening his own design workshop in 1992: Andreas Struppler Design in Munich. Distinctive and clear products have been his trademark since then. For companies like Sedus, Interstuhl or Wittmann he has designed successful products that reflect his philosophy: "convenience and intelligent utility for offices, leisure or the home".

FRANK HUSTER

Fun became earnest. Others play with them as children, Frank Huster – architect, designer and lecturer – turns them into his life's mission. Toys and houses out of paper and corrugated cardboard mark the start of a development that culminated in pre-fabricated building systems made from steel and plastic. Ultimately, this developed into his speciality: pre-fabricated wet rooms, sometimes as modular component systems. Architecturally clever, scientifically based.
